

Pym thanks the world for support

By Our Foreign Staff

In a speech in London last night on the eve of his journey to Washington to present proposals for solving the ~~Falklands~~ crisis, Mr Francis Pym, the Foreign Secretary, expressed his appreciation of the international support for Britain. He was speaking at the Lord Mayor's Easter Banquet for the Diplomatic Corps.

According to an advanced text, the Foreign Secretary described as immensely heartening, the readiness "with which our friends and partners around the world supported us in condemning the Argentine invasion and in backing our efforts with measures of their own.

"I draw real encouragement from this response
