I know what a rare privilege it is to be asked to Camp David. I enjoyed the visit enormously. What a beautiful spot it is: and how good to find you and Nancy both looking so well.

I found it very helpful to hear your thinking on some of the issues which will come up in your second term, particularly the Strategic Defence initiative. I was glad that we were able to agree the statement on this, since it put me in a position to deal very firmly at my press conference with attempts to suggest that we were at odds. It is kind of you to offer to send Bud McFarlane to brief me on the initiative more fully. I hope that he can come early in the New Year.

Thank you too for the book about Camp David and for the present, which I am keeping for Christmas Day.

I am looking forward very much to my next visit in February, if you are sure that is convenient. Meanwhile, Denis joins me in sending you and Nancy best wishes for Christmas and the New Year.

Yours ever
Ronald Reagan
